BNF (PDA)

PDA-enabled British National Formulary (BNF)

The Palm OS version of the BNF will be available from November 2003.

Supplied on a Secure Digital (SD) card BNF(PDA) will contain the fully navigable and searchable content of BNF46 (September 2003).

Will it contain the complete BNF text?

Yes, all BNF chapters and appendixes are included.

How will I navigate?

You will be able to navigate throughout the entire text of the BNF using the familiar hierarchical structure.

How will I be able to search?

You can search using the index, or by drug or preparation name.

Can I add notes and annotations?

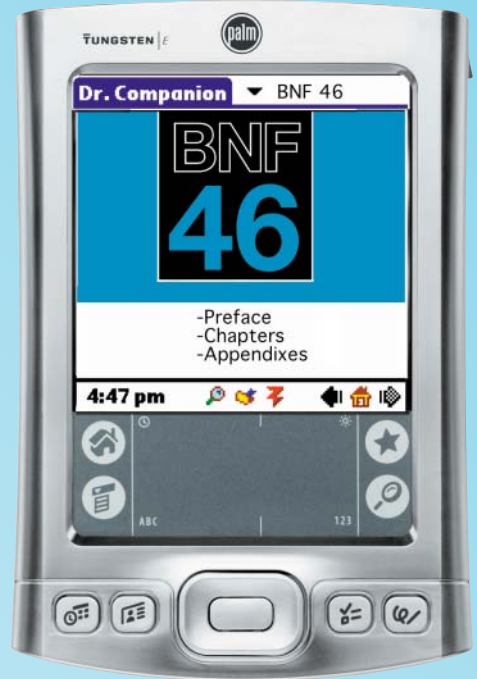

No, but we plan to provide this in future.

How much memory does it use?

It will run from the SD card so memory usage will be negligible.

Will it run on my Psion®?

No, only on a Palm OS ® device with an SD card slot.

How will it be updated?

Initially a new SD card will be issued for every update, but web-delivered updates are planned.

Will it time-out?

Unless a subscription is renewed the data will time out approximately 2-3 months after the subscription period ends.

Can I transfer the card between PDA's?

Yes, BNF (PDA) is not machine specific.

Is there a Pocket PC version planned?

Yes. A Pocket PC version is planned for 2004.

Is there a wireless version planned?

Wireless access to BNF.org is already available. Access depends on your wireless network environment.

What support will be available?

BNF (PDA) will be fully supported and a dedicated technical support forum is available on www.drcompanion.com

How much does it cost?

The price for a 1 year subscription - 2 releases - is £125 + VAT (£100 + VAT for NHS).

BNF46 will also be available from Dr. Companion on their integrated suite of handheld resources, including a number of the Oxford Handbooks and much more. Please e-mail: info@drcompanion.com or visit: www.drcompanion.com for more information.
